ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An optical communication system has a transmitter generating a phase-modulated optical signal (Sa, Sb,..., Sk); a receiver for receiving the phase-modulated optical signal; an optical communication link between the transmitter section and the receiver section. The optical communication link is a dispersion-managed optical communication link having dispersion-compensating elements propagating the phase-modulated optical signal at substantially constant optical power. The receiver has a dispersive element having a prescribed dispersion, the dispersive element receiving and converting the phase-modulated optical signal into a corresponding intensity-modulated optical signal, and an optical intensity detector fed with the intensity-modulated optical signal.
